Your comments and suggestions are helpful in improving this course.

(PAF 3401) The excessive amount of coursework reduced this class to just a series of tasks to complete. It would be helpful to be more concise and reduce the length of the lecture videos.

(PAF 3401) The required and readings were a little overwhelming at the beginning of the semester but as time passes I understands that it's important to keep up. Youtube lecture videos are great.

(PAF 3401) Great professor and also a great person. Loved them.

(PAF 3401) Such a kind person!! Honestly the real mvp, especially during online teaching, and we definitely need to see more professionals like her.

(PAF 3401) Great course. One suggestion is to introduce the data project paper and confirm topics earlier in the semester instead of towards the end. I'm struggling trying to focus on the paper right now with deadlines from other classes.

(PAF 3401) Despite this being an async. class, Professor Valente always made herself available to help her students. As for the course material, I thought she was clear with what was due at the end of each week. I did find the workload to be overwhelming at times but she does provide an extension if there is a valid reason. And I appreciate her providing opportunities to boost our grade. Really happy with my work this semester so thank you Professor!

(PAF 3401) The online format of the class was great and simple enough to follow along. Content is always organized and accessible, no problems completing work! The weekly emails and blackboard posts help keep me on track with my assignments.

(PAF 3401) I had absolutely no interest in this subject when the semester began. Now I wish there were higher level classes available! Professor Valente breaks down, what for me are not easy subjects, in a digestible manner. I now feel like I have a pretty good foundation for statistical modeling. I really wish Baruch offered more advanced classes in this topic because while Professor Valente did an excellent job, you can only get so far in a semester. Finally, she is available outside of class and she gives you every opportunity to succeed!
